FIFTEEN ALARMS IN 9 HOURS KEEP FIREMEN ON JUMP

Twelve Brush Blazes Extinguished Without Damage—Skies Aglow.

Fire crews, wearied with a phenomenal succession of alarms starting before noon, Thursday were called to new battles with flame when brush, ignited earlier in several outlying sections, spread under high winds to proportions alarming suburban dwellers.

No damage was recorded from the brush blazes but the lurid glows seemed to indicate holocausts in progress. Especially was this true around Bladensburg road and Mt. Olivet Cemetery where hundreds of persons assembled afoot and in automobiles shortly after 8 o'clock, attracted by red-lit skies.

During a nine-hour period fifteen alarms were turned in, twelve of them for these brush fires. Skillful handling by both day and night platoons alone, prevented several from spreading to houses.

Yesterday's fire record follows:

10:30 a. m. No. 8 on local to Smallpox Hospital, foot of E street southeast; brush.

11:50 a. m. No. 23 on local to Thirty-second and Oliver streets; brush.

12:24 p. m. No. 2 chemical to Twenty-ninth and R streets southeast; brush.

1:35 p. m. No. 24 engine to Sixteenth and Brentwood road northeast; brush.

2:12 p. m. No. 24 engine to Seventh and Webster streets northwest; brush.

2:34 p. m. No. 17 engine to Twelfth street and Brentwood road northeast; brush.

3:37 p. m. No. 2 engine on local to Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest, for fire in an automobile; no damage.

3:38 p. m. No. 27 engine on local to Ridge and Anacostia roads; brush.

4:27 p. m. Box 184 for fire in an automobile at Sixth and C streets northwest, owned and operated by Alphonso Rountt. Fire caused by sparks from motor; damage, $5.

5:11 p. m.—Box 8191, Third and Rittenhouse street northwest. Brush.

5:25 p. m.—Box 89 for fire in lamp wagon owned by the Capital Traction Company, on Belmont street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets northwest. About seventy-five lamps were destroyed. Damage about $50.

7:05 p. m.—No. 5 engine to New Cut and Foxhall roads. Brush.

7:58 p. m.—No. 20 engine to Connecticut avenue and Jewett streets northwest. Brush.

8:30 p. m.—Box 6134, Twenty-second and Irving streets northwest. Brush.

8:37 p. m.—No. 10 on local opposite Mount Olivet Cemetery. Brush.

Miss Fay Prince, a 19-year-old government employee, asked the District Supreme Court Thursday to step between her and foreclosure proceedings threatened by Henry L. Breuninger, from whom she agreed to buy the residence property at 3607 Georgia avenue northwest, on time payments.

The petitioner sets up the plea that she contracted to buy the property, while under legal age, from Breuninger for $15,000 and paid $600 cash, her first savings, assumed a first deed of trust for $4,200 and agreed to make monthly payments of $100 out of her salary, which is $1,340 a year.

When she found after making eight monthly payments of $100 each month that she could no longer continue them, she offered to waive any claim on the $225 representing the monthly payments and interest, if Breuninger would refund the $600. This she says he refused to do. The court is asked to restrain Breuninger from foreclosing the deed of trust.

SLAYS DETECTIVE, WOUNDS 2 OTHERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Police Detective Joseph Bridgetts was shot and killed and two others are in a Brooklyn hospital with bullet wounds as a result of a visit to the office of Charles T. Davis, wealthy Brooklyn manufacturer. It is said they went to Davis' office to place him under arrest.

Police declare that Davis used an automatic pistol and a rifle, firing both at the same time, and also using them to club his victims. When arrested later another loaded revolver was found in his pocket.

When police and detectives arrived they found Davis calmly looking over papers on his desk while the dead body of Bridgetts lay on the floor a few feet away.

Davis refused to talk. He with nine of his seventy-five employees was taken to police headquarters.

Car Jumps Tracks; No One Is Injured

Eastern high school students and government clerks luckily escaped injury Thursday morning when a street car of the Capital Traction Company jumped the tracks at Eighth and F streets northeast, up a right-of-way and stopped in the side yard of 728 F street northeast after crossing the sidewalk.

The car approached the Eighth and F streets intersection from the south. Starting at E street there is a sharp incline and when the brakes were applied at that point, the motorman, E. F. Garner, it is stated, found they failed to respond.

BIRTH CONTROL AID TO BE ASKED OF WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. Sanger Will Seek Help to Repeal Restrictive Statutes.

"The statute books must be cleared of laws which now make illegal the dissemination of information concerning birth control," Mrs. Margaret Sanger, editor of "The Birth Control Review," declared upon her arrival here Thursday night from New York.

"This is the only enlightened country in the world which has such laws," Mrs. Sanger added.

Mrs. Sanger, in an address before the convention of the American Woman's party, today will ask the women voters of the country to use their political influence toward repeal of the drastic laws against birth control now existing in eight States.

Mrs. Sanger believes physicians throughout the United States should be permitted to disseminate information relative to the use of contraceptives in order to combat what she declares are the evils brought on by overpopulation.

"There is no reason why the physically unfit should be forced by statute to bear children," Mrs. Sanger declared.

In Holland, where birth control was practiced before the war, she said, 54 per cent of the men were shown by military census to be physically fit.

"The only solution for the problem of overpopulation in Japan is birth control," said Mrs. Sanger. She said she was in receipt of appeals from the Japanese government for birth-control information.

Sullivan vs. Davis Retrial February 23

Following close on the action of the grand jury in indicting Max S. Johnson, a juror in the case of David W. Sullivan vs. John T. Davis, for an alleged attempt to "sway" the jury in favor of Davis, Justice Frederick L. Siddons Thursday set February 23 as the date for the retrial of the case.

Davis was sued for $500,000 damages for the alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Anne Marie Sullivan, whose husband, David W. Sullivan, unsuccessfully tried to divorce her last spring, naming Davis co-respondent. The alienation case ended in a mistrial last week, and Johnson was arrested immediately afterward and charged with approaching William Carroll, a detective, and offering to "sway" the jury in Davis' favor for $5,000.

Dr. Wiley Says Children Fed Poisonous Food

Most mothers feed their children poisonous food.

This was the declaration of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, food expert, in an address Thursday to members of the Wallace-Towers Parent-Teacher Association at Wallace School.

The health of many infants is shattered through defective teeth resulting from such poison, he said, advocating the reform of children's diets as one of the most urgent today.

"Revue" at Walter Reed.

A reconstructed and renovated "Patron Review" of 1921 appeared Thursday when Rev. Francis Hursey took his troupe of St. Patrick players to the Red Cross auditorium at Walter Reed Hospital, where they played for 1,000 wounded veterans and their nurses. The fourth appearance of the show brought out several new faces, including Miss Peggy O'Dea as the partner of Ambrose Harrison in a song and dance act. Miss Estell Murray, Katherine Stouffer and Tom Keeler appeared to advantage. The next performance of the players will take place St. Patrick's night in Carroll Hall.

STUDENTS PRESENT NEW PASSION PLAY

The "Upper Room," by Mgr.
Robert H. Benson, Pleases
Large Audience.

A pleasing performance of the
"Upper Room," Monseigneur Robert Hugh Benson's Passion Play, was presented to 800 Washington
ians in Carroll Hall Thursday night,
when a company composed of Trinity and Georgetown college students portrayed the death of Christ. The affair was held under the auspices of the Catholic Women's Service Club.

Several scenes brought out the dramatic ability of the performers,
the most striking being the "Last Supper" and the "Procession to Calvary." Sacred music accompanied the play, with Miss Elizabeth Bogan
at the organ.

The cast comprises Margaret Callahan, as the Doctor; Albert Kirshner as Achaz; Dorothy Callahan as Samuel; Paul Taylor as Joseph of Arimathia; Madeline O'Brien as Mary Magdalen; Mrs. Hamilton Wilson as Mary, the Mother of Christ;
Thomas Kernan as John; William
McGuire as Peter; Clara Welsh as Veronica, and Burke Walsh as Judas and Longinus. Rev. O'Hern was in charge of arrangements. Miss Elsie Kernan, instructor of dramatics at Trinity College, was the director.

Alleged Bond-jumper Brought to District

A man whom the police declare to be Claude Bailey, under indictment for alleged participation in a shooting affray on Pierce street in March, 1919, was brought here Thursday from Elkhon, Md., where he was held by the authorities under the name of C. W. Burroughs in connection with an automobile hold-up Tuesday night.

Headquarters Detectives Kelly, Scrivener and Sweeney declare that Bailey jumped his bond here after being indicted by the grand jury. Under what they describe as his alias, Burroughs, he was released from the Elkhon jail after examination with five other men arrested after the hold-up.
